

RUSS LINES BATTERED BY MACKENSEN

STRO-GERMAN GENERAL CONTINUES IN EFFORTS TO CRUSH RUSSIANS IN GALICIA.

NO IMPORTANT CHANGE

Despite Continuous Fighting Situation Remains Critical With Decision Still In Doubt.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, June 14.—Although the French would appear to be unrelentless in their offensive work, which is getting them slow progress in the northwestern France, the situation in the eastern arena of the war, where the Austro-Germans are straining every nerve to deliver a crushing blow to the Russians remains of the utmost importance. No confirmation has yet been received that the Austro-Germans have occupied Zurewka, but further to the south they are across the river Dneister and on Russian soil in Bessarabia.

Mackensen Loses 20,000.

A press dispatch from Petrograd says that 20,000 men in the army of General Von Mackensen were killed as a result of an attack on the Russian position near Moskiska, in Galicia. The Austro-German attempt to capture Lemberg is said to have been given up. Official dispatches, however, indicate no marked change in Galicia, where the fighting is continuous and severe.

Not for months past has there been such general activity on the eastern front. Checked at the center of the Galician line, the Austro-Germans have developed an offensive on both wings at the same time and they are starting another battle in Poland to the north of Przemyśl. There is confused fighting going on at the same time in the Baltic provinces, so it may be said that they are at grips once more from the Baltic to the Roumanian frontier.

The stand which the Russians have been making recently in Galicia indicates to the British observers that their shortage of ammunition has been overcome. It was this shortage according to belief here that enabled the Austro-Germans last month to sweep across the country and take Przemyśl in such record time.

Indores War Premier.
In Greece the followers of former Premier Venizelos, who resigned because Greece would not enter the war on the side of the allies, seemed to have the upper hand, judging from the early returns of the general election held in that kingdom. Indorsement of the policies of Venizelos may have a bearing on Greece's future course of action.

Storm Russian Positions.
Berlin, June 14.—Official announcement was made here this afternoon that General Von Mackensen occupied Russian positions along the entire front in the eastern arena of the war from Cyerniawa to Sleniawa. The official statement says:

"In the neighborhood of Kuzie, north of Shavil, a few positions were taken. Three hundred officers and 400 men were taken prisoners. Southwest of Miampole Kowars troops took the first Russian line by storm."
"Three officers and 351 men were captured. General Von Mackensen began an attack over a line extending forty-three miles. Starting from their positions, Cyerniawa, northeast of Mooskiska, and at Sleniawa, the enemy's position had been taken along the entire length of this front. Sixteen thousand prisoners fell into our hands yesterday."
"Attacks by the troops under General Von Linsingen and General Von Marwitz also made progress."

CIVIL WAR "VETS" GATHER AT WAUSAU

Many Veterans From Janesville to Attend State Encampment of Civil War Soldiers at Wausau.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Wausau, Wis., June 14.—One thousand Wisconsin veterans of the civil war were here today to attend the forty-ninth annual state encampment of the G. A. R. There were also several thousand men, women and children of allied organizations. The headquarters train arrived this afternoon from Milwaukee and other special trains were run from Madison, Superior Eau Claire and Marinette. The convention will last three days.

Today was devoted to registration and administrative matters. The council of administration examined the books of the adjutant general and quartermaster who will submit their report tomorrow. The encampment parade will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The line of march will be as short as is practical. It will be under the direction of commander Samuel A. Cook of Neenah. The feature of the parade will be the living flag composed of one thousand girls in red white and blue dresses arranged as a flag. It is expected that more than two thousand will be in line including five hundred soldiers, the Sons of Veterans and Company G. W. N. G.

Commander in chief Palmer who led the review of General Sherman's army in Washington fifty years ago will be present at this encampment. He will be accompanied to this city by Gov. Phillips.

The campfire will be held tomorrow night at Rotobach, four miles north of Wausau. Practically the entire visiting delegation is expected to participate.

The city is elaborately decorated in honor of the veterans. A court of honor has been erected around the courthouse. A large arch spans the roadway at the Third street entrance. On the arch and the columns, which have been placed around the entire square are inscribed the names of the Wisconsin regiments and the battles in which they participated. Bunting and flags were draped along trolley guide wires and ornamental light posts, and public buildings and residences are bright with the national colors.

This is the first state encampment ever held in a northern city and hundreds of veterans are in attendance because of their advanced age. The attendance from the southern part of the state also is large.

BRITISH STEAMER IN PORT WITH FIRE IN HER CARGO

London, June 14.—The British steamship Hohemount of 3,300 tons gross, was torpedoed and sunk near St. Ives by a German submarine. The crew was saved.

Submarine Halts Schooners.

London, June 14.—Two Danish schooners, Katrine and Cocos Merstal, were stopped today by a submarine. The crew of the Cocos Merstal was sent aboard the Katrine and the former vessel was then set on fire. The Katrine arrived at the Firth of Forth, Scotland.

Hits Mine in White Sea.

The British steamship Argale of 3,584 tons gross, has been sunk as a result of striking a mine in the White Sea.

The British steamship Argale was built in 1906. She was 242 feet long, 48 feet beam and 23 feet deep. She was owned by the T. Smiles & Sons Steamship company, Ltd. of Whitby. The Argale presumably was carrying a cargo to Archangel, the only important Russian port bordering on the Arctic Ocean.

REFUGEES FROM ALEXANDRIA NIP TURKISH GRAFT PLOT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cairo, June 14.—Refugees who arrived in Alexandria from Jaffa stated to a representative of the Egyptian Gazette that the American consul at the Syrian port nipped a plan of the Turkish officials there to keep for themselves three-quarters of the relief supplies of food contributed by the Jews of the United States to their suffering co-religionists in Palestine. The food was brought over on the American ship Vulcan. Her arrival at Jaffa was enthusiastically greeted by the Turkish authorities for a reason soon apparent. Before allowing any food to go through to the starving Jews, they demanded the greater part for themselves.

Royal permission to land the supplies had, however, been granted by the sultan and the arrival of the consignment with the necessary papers satisfied the matter.

FIVE CIVIL WAR MEN GO TO WAUSAU TODAY FOR G. A. R. MEETING

A. F. Hall, Joseph Bear, Charles Riker, Michael Raby and A. M. Glenn, members of W. H. Sargent Post No. 20, G. A. R., left this morning for Wausau, where they will attend the annual convention of the state camp of the Grand Army of the Republic. The veterans departed from here over the C. M. & St. P. Ry. for Madison, where a special train will be run directly to Wausau. The convention will be in session through Wednesday.

DIRECTORS APPROVE OF NEW OFFICE SITE

Commercial Club Men Indorse Action of Promotion Committee at Meeting This Noon.

The Commercial club directors at their meeting today ratified the action of the promotion committee for the lease of the storeroom at the corner of East Milwaukee and North Bluff streets in the Myers theatre block. Work of refitting for headquarters of the association will begin July 1st.

The report of the lighting committee, Edward Amerpohl chairman, was adopted and a final campaign to close up the ornamental street lighting will begin at once. The Civic committee, Louis Levy chairman, will inspect the fifty gardens of the young city agriculturists under the guidance of Prof. West of the high school. John H. Jones, the new director, was made chairman of the committee on public meeting and Amos Rehberg, chairman of the referees committee. The Commercial club members are requested, as many as can, to attend the field day exercises of Rock Prairie at the home of J. L. McLeay, Tuesday, June 22nd.

FARMERS WON TO NAVAL NEEDS BY PRESIDENT'S AID

Carl Schurz Vrooman.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Vrooman has become one of the administration's most earnest advocates of preserving peace. In addressing farmers' meetings he has repeatedly called attention to the fact that "when half the people of the earth are tearing each other to pieces like wild beasts in the arena we must have the protection of battleships."

MEXICAN FIGHTING WATCHED CLOSELY

Washington, June 14.—Attention of the Washington officials was focused again today on the military situation in Mexico, where the possibility of an important development, which might bring ultimate peace to the southern republic. "NAVAL POWER IS PARAMOUNT," SAYS ADMIRAL CHADWICK

Rear Admiral F. E. Chadwick.

The paramount part which navies of the world, including that of the United States, have played in times of international crises—in many cases holding the scale between national triumph and desperate national defeat—is pointed out by Rear Admiral F. E. Chadwick in his book, "The American Navy," just published. Admiral Chadwick holds that the United States can only remain a world power through a navy of sufficient size and efficiency to "command safety and peace."

POLICE SEARCHING FOR LOUIS OTMER ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Foreigner Who Cruelly Attacks Wife Sunday Morning Chased by Police Early This Morning.

Police authorities are searching for Louis Otmer, a foreigner who resides on North Bluff street, whom it is alleged committed a cruel attack upon his wife, beating her with his fists, choking and threatening her with a revolver Sunday morning. The timely arrival of the police prevented a dangerous or probably fatal outcome of the man's brutal passion, for the woman is now under the care of a physician, suffering from the abuse.

About nine-thirty Sunday morning the department received a call from the neighbors that Otmer was murdering his wife and Patrolman Fred Albright made a hurried trip in an automobile to the residence. Here he found Mrs. Otmer lying on the sidewalk gasping for breath, the result of being choked in an unusual manner by her husband. She was taken into the neighbor's house and cared for by a physician while the police started search for Otmer. The woman speaks English very poorly and through her son, who was at church during the time of the trouble, the police were able to obtain a broken story of the attack and their arrest. Otmer was given for nearly eighteen dollars by the husband. In her story Mrs. Otmer declared her husband took the money and started to quarrel over the right to the ownership of the funds. Angered, he choked her down to the floor and then stuffed rags into her mouth to prevent her from speaking for help. It was then that Otmer forced his knee into his wife's body and drew a revolver, threatening to shoot her. As she arose from the floor he started choking her again and forced her to crawl away to the back, where she fell. Otmer jumped from the porch and ran down the street a few minutes before the police officer arrived.

This morning about ten o'clock Otmer came to the house again and the police received warning when neighbors saw him coming out of the window. Otmer was given for nearly two miles, the man being too far away for the use of revolvers. The pursued man was able to elude the officers near the city limits. Chief Chapman reported the matter to District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie this morning and a warrant charging assault and battery will probably be issued this afternoon. The police are anxious to get hold of Otmer as he has caused previous trouble and the attack upon his wife was declared to be most brutal.

CHICAGO SPEEDERS ARE FINED TWENTY

Party of University Students Caught on South Main Street—Check on Father Pays Fine.

Two Chicago automobile owners learned to the detriment of their purses of the extent of twenty dollars and costs, that Janesville has a city ordinance against speeding which is enforced as far as it is possible by the police department. Francis Garibaldi, with a party of four, were touring from Madison, and are students at the University of Chicago. On the way through Janesville, this morning the driver, Garibaldi, "stepped on the pedal" and sped down South Main street at a merry rate. Motorcycle Policeman Cain was close behind traveling around forty miles per hour to keep pace with the auto ahead of him.

In court Garibaldi was arraigned for violating the city ordinance and was fined twenty dollars and costs, amounting to $22.40, by the court. One of the youths stepped into the clerk's office, carelessly signed a check in "papa's name and the party departed in their auto at a very reduced speed—very much wiser students.

John McEvilly, also of Chicago, was caught "driving a speeder" on North Washington street by Cain. He pleaded guilty to violating the speed ordinance and was fined twenty and costs.

YACHT RAMS LINER IN FOG; TWO DEAD

Bow of Billings' Steam Yacht Smashes Big Hole in Side of Metropolitan Line Steamer.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, June 14.—C. K. G. Billings' steam yacht Vanadis, reached Gloucester, Long Island, today with the body of John J. Brown of Boston, one of the two victims of a collision in Long Island Sound last night between the yacht and the big white passenger steamer Bunker Hill of the Metropolitan line. The body of the other victim, George H. Kendrick, also of Boston, was brought back to New York by the Bunker Hill, which returned in the night with a hole in her side 30 feet high and nearly 20 feet long.

Brown and Kendrick and three others injured in the accident were passengers on the Bunker Hill, bound for Boston. The yacht Vanadis, the passenger steamer in a thick fog at Eaton's Neck, at the eastern end of Huntington Bay. The yacht backed out of the hole of the void on the Bunker Hill's side, with her bows smashed and festooned with iron bedsteads and other furniture swept up in the state rooms of the sound liner. The wound of Mr. Brown was received while he lay in bed in the opinion of Captain Farrington of the Vanadis. When the Vanadis backed away from the Bunker Hill she carried on her sharp bowsprit, among other wreckage two iron beds. One of these beds, Captain Farrington believed, Brown lay, falling bruised, cut and unconscious into the water as the colliding craft cleared each other.

STRIKE HITS CAR SERVICE IN CHICAGO

NOT A WHEEL TURNS ON SURFACE AND ELEVATED LINES AS EMPLOYEES STRIKE.

STEAM LINES JAMMED

Worst Traffic Situation in City's History Follows Failure to Compromise at Sunday Conference.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, June 14.—Chicagoans, approximately 1,500,000 of them, walked, motored and used steam roads to their work today.

A strike of 14,000 street car employees went into effect at midnight last night. Not a wheel on the 1,310 miles of the surface and elevated lines turned after four o'clock this morning, when the last crew took their cars into the barn. It was the first time in a generation that all the street cars in Chicago were completely tied up.

No Strike Disorders.
The strike was carried out without any disorder. Seven hundred policemen were on guard at the various car barns around the city to watch property and prevent crowds from congregating. The men cheered as they left their cars.

Orders to strike were issued after an all day conference yesterday of the union leaders, transportation company officials and Mayor Thompson, who in vain attempted to bring about arbitration. Neither side would yield. The strikers had demanded a guarantee of a wage increase. Officials of the companies refused this demand. To meet its company officials said would mean an increase of $1,400,000 annually. W. D. Mahon, international president of the street car men's union, attended the conference. Officials said no attempt would be made to operate the cars today.

Express Trains Jammed.
A Chicago & Northwestern express train which arrived at 7:25 o'clock and which stopped to collect suburban passengers at only one station, was so jammed with passengers that the conductor made no attempt to collect fares. It was impossible for him to move through the aisles. He reported that at every station in the city thousands of persons were waiting for the train, and it seemed impossible that all could be cared for.

A stretch of track of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul runs north from the downtown district within a mile of the lake, past the Evanston branch of the Northwestern elevated. Ordinarily two trains a day are running over this track to preserve the franchise. Today this line became a revenue producer. It stopped at Wilson avenue and moved several hundred passengers as far as Division street, about half of the distance down town, when the passengers left it. Fares were not charged as the train was not designed for the purpose to which it was put.

HAVE NO UNEMPLOYED TROUBLE IN MOROCCO NOTWITHSTANDING WAR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Rabat, Morocco, June 14.—Notwithstanding the war, public and private business is going on as usual in Morocco and there is no exceptional unemployment. A number of public works are being pushed to completion, including new roads, sewers and street lights.

The German prisoners in Morocco number about 15,000. They are allowed a considerable degree of freedom, and on Sundays they may be seen in groups of about twenty sight-seeing under the guardianship of a single French soldier to each group. In some parts of the country they are given employment at road-making.

LETTERS ON SHORTAGE OF FOOD ARE BARRED FROM WAR PRISONERS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

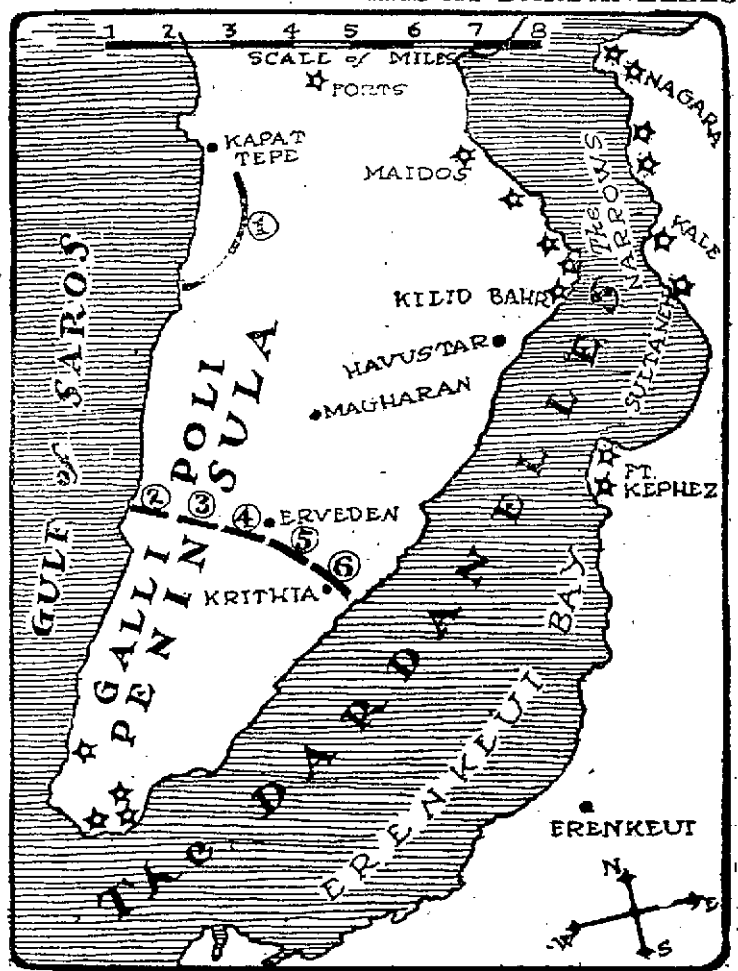

Berne, Switzerland, June 14.—An order has been issued in Saxony forbidding people to write to prisoners of war in France or England about the dearth of necessities or the shortage of food.

"Such letters," says the official proclamation, "are public enemies of the war. In future they will not be passed by the censors."

Recent official statements of allied gains on the Gallipoli Peninsula give a clear and detailed account of the approximate numbers and disposition of Sir Ian Hamilton's army of invasion. The total expeditionary army, according to these reports, numbers not far from 200,000 men. It consists of two divisions, or 40,000, of French infantry and artillery; a division of marines; one division of British regulars, another of territorials, and two divisions of Indian troops; and about three divisions, or 60,000, of Australian and New Zealand troops.

The troops are disposed as follows, as shown on the map: The Australian and New Zealand troops, commanded by Lieut. Gen. Birdwood, landed at Gaba Tepe (1) and are trying to fight their way across toward Maidos. The rest of the army is entrenched across the peninsula, just above Krithia, in this order: On the left, on the Aegean shore, the Indians; (2); next to them the British regulars (3); then the territorials (4); the marines (5); and the French (6) on the extreme right flank, the line reaching to the Dardanelles shore.

STORM CLOUD SCARES MANY IN JANESVILLE ON SATURDAY NIGHT
Rapidly Moving Overhead, People Thought Vicinity 'About to Experience Another Tornado.'
Janesville and vicinity suffered a cyclone scare Saturday night. All the earmarks of the tornado of November 11, 1911, were in evidence.
A torrential rain fell early in the evening continued until near midnight, the downpour being the heaviest of the season. Lowering skies at 7 o'clock lent a bad aspect, and with the vivid, sharp lightning the evening was anything but pleasant for a nervous person. Following the first heavy downpour with a wind of high velocity a great black cloud moved over the city from the southwest and traveled swiftly to the northwest, the general route of tornadoes in this section. Although the storm had more the appearance of a cyclone than the twisting features of a tornado, damage in this vicinity was slight.
Hundreds of shoppers who ventured down town despite the threatening heavens had sufficient cause to wish they had remained at home. The duration of the rain kept the streets bare until store closing time came, and then rain-soaked persons decided to "make runs" for the night. The utter lack of a lull in the storm gave opportunity for people to take advantage of the time to move for home, with the result that drenched shoppers were much in evidence during the evening.
The storm caused a heavy strain on the Rockford and Interurban company's power plant at Rockford, placing this station out of working order for several hours. With a high tension wire burned out between Rockford and Beloit early in the evening, interurban service was tied up for about four hours, incidentally, since the locomotion of the Janesville street railway system is secured from the interurban company, a similar tieup was experienced by the local cars.
The trouble was remedied about 11 o'clock by linemen the urban street immediately dispatched to effect repairs. Interurban cars were kept on schedule until 2 a. m. Sunday morning.
A short circuit, thought to have been caused by a broken tree limb falling on the wires of the Janesville Electric Light company, caused so heavy a current that the plant at Rockford was forced to take a week to repair, resulted. An eleven foot cast iron pulley, weighing approximately 200 pounds, was crushed, breaking the belt and temporarily placing the plant out of commission.
With the Indian Ford power house just in the course of construction, the load carried by the main plant at Rockford was extremely heavy. Light on the west side of the river were extinguished for about two hours, until matters could be adjusted to supply the necessary current from the main power plant.
P. H. Korst, president of the light company, announced this morning that the Monterey plant will be shut down for the remainder of the week. Necessary machine parts have been ordered from Chicago. The electric company's customers, however, will be furnished with sufficient light and power as the steam plant at the fourth avenue plant has started.
Ford Plant Progressing.
Work on the sub-power house of the company at Indian Ford is well under way with expectations that it will be ready to furnish current early in July.
A. W. Woodworth, chief engineer for the company, is at Indian Ford supervising the construction of the new building and the installation of the necessary machinery. Some of this is already on hand and a carload more is expected during the week.
The building is strictly modern in all respects. It is of brick and is fireproof. Expectations are that it will be finished shortly, the contractor today having started laying the roof.

While Janesville and the surrounding territory suffered little loss in the storm Saturday night, a large portion of the west central part of the state is strewn with devastation and death as was this vicinity November, 1911. Eleven persons are dead over twenty known to be severely injured, scores of others hurt, many buildings destroyed, thousands of dollars worth of crops and eighteen miles of telephone and telegraph wires torn down in the tornado, many miles of telephone and telegraph heavy wind and rain storm which swept the territory about La Crosse, Perryville, near there was the worst hit, seven being killed and eighteen injured, together with the havoc wrought. Damage is estimated at $100,000.
At Redsburg one man was killed, while two met death the same night in a storm which struck Racine.
The tornado swept over a large portion of Crawford county. After several hours of heavy atmosphere a twister formed over the Mississippi, three miles north of Perryville, followed the river south for eight miles.

turned and went directly east, the tail of the wind monster dipping here and there, leveling buildings and trees wherever it touched.
A baby at Perryville was carried a mile through the air. The mother was discovered one-fourth this distance from the home. Both were twisted, crushed and dead.
While running through the blinding storm to catch a jitney bus at Racine Christ Peterson was run down and killed. A circus employee was death under the cars while engaged in loading the parade wagons on the circus train.

Resented Her Handicap.
Mona was the only girl in a family of four brothers, and used to play almost entirely with her brothers and their friends. One morning her father saw a party of boys swinging under and over an iron fence, and finally noticed Mona doing the same thing. He hastily ran out and explained that such behavior was not ladylike. Mona wasn't at all pleased and demanded tearfully, "Why for was I a lady, daddy?"

The First Perfumes.
When you use perfume and call it such, do you think how the name came about? It means, in Latin, "from smoke," and the name proves that the first perfumes were only aromatic woods or gums that scented the air when burned.

LARGE CROWDS SEE "THE SPOILERS"
Yesterday the Myers theatre was packed at all three performances of "The Spoilers," the film version of Rex Beach's famous book of rugged Alaskan life.
This is the third time that "The Spoilers" has been shown in Janesville. It is doubtful if there ever has been shown a stronger picture or one that would so appeal to the average picture fan. It is full of strong actions and every part is capably handled by an all star cast with Kathryn Williams and William Farnum playing the leads.

INSURANCE LESSON SHOWS HOW STATE'S FIRE LOSS IS PAID
Destruction of State Paper Supply by Fire This Week Means Taxpayers Must Stand Loss.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., June 14.—This is the story of a fire and why it cost the taxpayers of Wisconsin between $6,000 and $8,000.
The amount of money involved is not the point but rather the fact that the taxpayers will have to foot the bill instead of private insurance companies. The first part of this week the warehouse at Madison caught fire. It was $8,000 worth of paper that had been bought for the printing of the election pamphlet. This paper was insured by the state of Wisconsin under the provisions of the fire insurance act. As a matter of business fact it was not insured at all because the taxpayers were called upon to pay the premium and now they will have to stand the loss too. Had this paper been insured by any private company all the state would have paid would have been the premium for three years which at the outside would not have cost $500. And when the fire came the private companies would have paid the $8,000 loss. But in the words of a state official "this fire insurance idea is a Progressive measure, therefore it cannot be wrong." Nevertheless the people pay. All of which calls attention to the condition of the present fire insurance fund. According to a statement given out by the commissioner of insurance, this fund is in a most promising condition. It has a surplus of some $2,000,000—apparently. Nevertheless from other sources the conclusion comes that instead of a surplus there is in reality a deficit of some $100,000 or more.
A prominent underwriter, who has been in the insurance business in Wisconsin for thirty years, was asked to explain how a private enterprise would be honestly bankrupt if it were operated under the method employed by the state at present. "Well in the first place," he said, "we will take two items of money borrowed by this fund from the general fund in 1903 and 1905. The first was $25,137.99. The interest on this to date would amount to about $48,000. In 1905 $38,000 was borrowed in the same way.
The interest on that amounts to $34,000. It will also be noted that the payment of the loss on the state capital was distributed over a period of seven years and no interest was charged. This item would amount to approximately $28,400, making a total interest charge of over $80,000. Until 1913 no charge was made for inspection and rating. Yet this year this charge already amounts to some $6,000. However allowing only $5,000 a year for clerical help, inspection and rating in twelve years we would have an item of some $60,000. Deducting the $9,000 of interest charged to this account since 1911 we would have left $51,000 that remains uncharged. Adding this to the unpaid interest charges of $80,000, we would have a total of some $131,000. Deducting the surplus of $22,000 from this we would have therefore a deficit of approximately $109,000. Not only that but the state has saved nothing in premiums and for this reason: If the state were to insure its property with a private company on a five year basis, the premiums are paying out just what the state is paying out in the present system. The people of the state had to pay $197,831.53 for the state capitol when as a matter of fact had a private company the state would have been able to collect nearly $400,000. Not only that but the present capitol which is absolutely fireproof and which is insured for $4,000,000 and the state is paying a premium of some $14,000 a year into this fund. Understand that even a bronze statue at the University that is not in a building is insured for $7,000. Well it might burn, present serious objection to the fund is the inclusion of county, city and village properties, for some reason that should be a series of fires at each of these properties and the fund be further depleted it would again become necessary to turn to the general fund to make good the losses. In this event every taxpayer would be compelled through increased taxation, whether the county in which he resided insured in the fund or not. It should also be borne in mind that only fifteen counties in the state at present subscribe to this fund.
"In addition to these items it will also be noted that at present the state is losing the two per cent state tax that would be collected on premiums paid to private companies. The three per cent state tax fire insurance and the additional two per cent on the premiums to private companies that would go to each municipality having a fire insurance, where a state building is located."

Father and Mother's Gift
Father and Mother are going to give a watch for graduation, but how far have you, Father and Mother, looked into the watch question outside of the price and perhaps a certain make?
FIND OUT ABOUT IT
Among the thousands of watches that are sent out each day from the factory some are sure to be imperfect timekeepers. Then you fall back on your guarantee and in this respect my 35 years experience in repairing and making watches in the different factories, means everything to the ultimate satisfaction of your watch.
VALUE OF A NAME AND TRADE-MARK
The watches I show you are only standard makes. The cases are plainly stamped with guarantee and trade-mark of the oldest and most reliable makers of gold filled cases.
BUILT ON CONFIDENCE
By consistently giving each customer real satisfaction and high grade service. Purchase your watch of me and this important factor will enter into the transaction and I will positively guarantee you a satisfactory and excellent timepiece. My watch record book shows a total of nearly 2,000 names of watch patrons in three years. There is a reason. Think it over.

AT MYERS THEATRE.
"She Stoops to Conquer."
When Oliver Goldsmith devised comedy of perennial charm, but he little realized the new realm into which it would extend its delights and it has remained for the London Film company through George Loane Tuckwell, producer, and a cast of talented players to put it effectively into celluloid circulation.
Such a jolly tale of it as these English players have made would be hard to equal. Their presence is as effective as though they were on the stage only four rows away, and so telling is their pantomimic interpretation that strange as it may sound to say, one doesn't miss Goldsmith's verbal whimsy. The picture so clearly conveys his ideas and so delightfully duplicates the amusing situations of the play that it satisfies the observer all over.
"She Stoops to Conquer" will be shown at Myers theatre tomorrow, matinee and evening, at popular prices.

"Y" DEFEATS LEWIS BY SCORE 8 TO 2; PARKERS WIN MATCH

Poor Support Behind Connell Loses Game for the Knitting Company—Parkers Rout "Ralls" With Bats.

Team	GP	W	L	Pct.
Y. M. C. A.	2	2	0	1.000
Parker Pen	2	1	1	.500
Lewis Knitting	2	1	1	.500
Roundhouse	2	2	0	1.000

As the result of an 8 to 2 victory over the Lewis Knitting team Saturday, the Y. M. C. A. line stayed in the lead of the Commercial club and the Parkers defeated the Roundhouse 13 to 7 in the second contest. The "Y" Lewis men went six innings and was a duel between Connell, on the mound for the Lewis, and Curtis, pitcher of the Association. In the second game, the Parkers carried too many war clubs in their socks for the Roundhouse, for the Lucky Curve men saw the glory of it. Lee, unmercifully in two innings of the full-time game.

In the first game, Curtis, pitcher for the Milton high school, gave the Lewis bunch an unpleasant surprise, for his heaving was a thorn in the side of the losers. The Lewis men were only able to garner six hits off him in the half a dozen innings and the Milton youth fanned eleven. Connell was hurling in good form and had his team-mates afforded him support in the pinches, the spirited men would have been far closer. Connell allowed eight hits, two of which were two baggers in times of need, and he fanned eleven. Hemming scored in the first inning on a strike-out. He gained first when Pinneran missed a drop curve and went to second on a sacrifice. He scored on Sullivan's hit. Connell retired the side on strike-outs in the second and the Lewis players were unable to reach Curtis safely until the third. In the "Y" half of the third Hemming singled and Koop was safe on an error. Sullivan boosted a high fly which Mulligan dropped, and Pinneran batted in a double. French followed with a hit that was stretched.

CARDINALS DEFEATED BY MADISON 3 TO 2

JANESVILLE NINE LOSES FIRST GAME THROUGH WEAKNESS WITH STICK.

GAME PITCHERS' DUEL

Butters and Dodge Mix in Pitching Duel and Local Hurler Loses Game by Narrow Margin.

Sterling pitching by Dodge brought down the Janesville Cardinals, the first of the season. Sunday afternoon, when the F. B. C. team of Madison nosed out a 3 to 2 victory, after a thrilling pitchers' duel. "Cuddy" Butters was pitched again. Dodge, who is a former leaguer, and it was nip and tuck all the route. But for a wild spasm in the fourth inning, when the Cardinals started throwing the ball haphazardly, Butters and Dodge might have been battling up at the Association grounds until darkness, for neither team were using their best to any great advantage.

On Butters the Madison squad managed to place six scratch hits, but the tough part of the affair was that they mixed three of them with a series of misplays in the fourth inning which cost the glover's clothes. "Cuddy" was heaving in great style, despite the cold atmosphere which usually is to his disadvantage, for his control was nearly perfect. Dodge, however, went him one better, for he allowed six scattered hits, and by his curve pitching proved too much for a dozen Cardinals who were unable to fathom those graceful shoots and benders. Johnson, Hall and Cornell were the only Cardinals able to knock Dodge for singles, but these were never dived in wool hits and had several other alleged hitters on the card team been able to use the war club in the pinches, the Cardinals would have been brighter. Croak and Cornell were the fielding stars of the day. Croak grabbing a line drive off Tenny in the sixth near second base and catching the runner by a quick throw to first. Dodge delivered from an extremely hard position. Cornell booted one easy roller, but during the session made seven put outs, three of which were the result of Jack Hall's deadly wink to second.

There was nothing resembling a run until the fourth, both slab artists mowing the batters down nearly in order. Madison took a 2 to 0 lead in the first, when Hyland, first up, walked, and was sacrificed to second, and with one down, Dohr worked the Cardinal pitcher for four balls. Butters started across three fast ones, fanning Gorman. In the next round Butters fanned the entire Madison side with eighteen pitched balls and but two fouls were allowed off his delivery. The third was uneventful.

Then came the storm. Thunder began sounding when Gorman singled with one down. Hall missed a low pitch, putting the Cardinals on base. On second, Johnson caught Tenny on his drive down third and the rally looked like a false alarm. Rice managed to get in the way of an in-shoot and was granted a free kick. Hall made an overthrow to second, allowing one to score. Power and Dodge followed with timely blows that were just out of reach of the infield and these wallops gained other scores. After this deluge, Madison was helpless before Butters as the infield gave him perfect support. The Cardinals went across one in their half of the fourth, when Croak was safe on an error down shore. He stole second and was safe by a hair's breadth. The Madison bunch acquiesced considerably over the decision, but the Albany "kid" grinned and waited at the keystone sack. Hall came through with a hit that scored the first taste of a run. The next one came in the sixth, when Johnson opened the inning with a safe blow and went second on a fly. Cornell poked through a single which scored Johnson. Hall went to first when hit by Dodge and Euteneier came to bat. There were big expectations from "Cuddy," but the hopes died when the Card pitcher booped up a high foul that Rice canned under. In the eighth a ray of sunshine appeared when Croak walked, but was out when Madison pulled a little inside signal work and caught the local player at the second station when a drive was laid down between first and second into the waiting hands of Hyland and the shortstop. Dohr, covered second in time to complete the double play at first. Cornell, the batter, had attempted to hit the ball down the grove, but Hyland outgassed him and played over.

The match was the best played this season and about three hundred fans were present to witness the festivity. Summary:

Next Sunday the Cardinals cross bats with a fast city piece of Rock Island at the Association park. The Rock Island team is reputed to be one of the fastest semi-pro nines in this section. The Cards will be strengthened considerably. Miller played with Whitewater Sunday and it is said he will be in the Cardinal line-up from next Sunday on.

Dodge was about as good a pitcher as has been in the Association park diamond in many a season. He had several curves with a beautiful array of curves, and knew how to mix them up. His wind-up was somewhat of a joke, but his pitching was far from humorous.

Powers prevented a sure double play for the Cardinals in the third inning, when he ran into Cornell at second stopping the second sacker from throwing to first to catch Corcoran.

The "enemy ball," having been given the bat by the league bosses, the "licorice ball" has now come in prominence. Just when this form of cheating was invented is not known, but "Smoky Joe" Wood, Boston's speed invel, is the first to be accused of using it this year. Wild William Donovan buried the charge at Boston's first citizen in a recent engagement between his Yanks and the Red Sox. He buried the charge loud and often but it did him no good—the umpires ignored him and Wood only smiled.

Wood was facing the Yankees in a thirteenth inning battle. The day was dark and as it got late it grew darker. To the grandstand and press box spectators it looked very much like Wood was doing as Donovan said—plessanting the fans with licorice juice on the ball to discolor it. The pellet that the Smokey one

One of the most distressing features of the abandonment of the 1916 Olympics from the American point of view is the number of wonderful performers in this country who have never won Olympic honors and will never get the chance unless the meeting is held in 1916. Howard P. Drew, the great colored sprinter, is one. He had cost Drew, his title at Stockholm, but nothing on earth could prevent him from winning the 100-meter Olympic championship if it was run next year. It is not reasonable to expect Drew to hold his form until 1920, his chance for an Olympic title is gone.

It seems that the usual Mack luck is once more prevailing and that he has picked up the "Bull" Durham. Malone, the Mount St. Joseph college infielder, Malone is touted as being a natural ball player, who with a little experience will develop into a star of the first class. Malone has picked up many such youngsters in this way. Eddie Collins was unheard of until he developed under Mack and became one of the greatest players in the game. Mack is not going to have a player very long. He is sure to improve it with a lot of young players in due time, and even in the present race, he is not apt to finish in last place.

Ball players who have jobs paying them well have reason to be thankful for the time is not far off when many of them will find it hard to get employment, while the compensation will be far below what it has been. If the plan to cut all major league clubs to sixteen men is carried out, a lot of players will be out of work.

The Browns blame their poor showing to the falling down of Clarence Walker as a high jumper. Walker was hitting at a .30 clip just a year ago, and the Browns were winning. Now he is hovering around the .220 mark, and the Browns are having a hard time winning. It is hinted that Walker has a "groove" and that the American league pitchers have located that, and naturally are avoiding pitching into it, hence Walker is not getting very many nits.

In England trapshooting is rather a means to an end than an end in itself, for there it is regarded primarily as an excellent means of earning money. Field hunting plays a much more important part in social life than it does in this country, and men who are guests at country houses about Ranelagh, Belvoir and Durlingham are expected to be proficient with the shotgun and qualified to participate in a grouse hunt. To speak generally, high scores are not the object in English trapshooting, the purpose being to reproduce nearly as possible the conditions of wing shooting; and therefore the methods and rules differ somewhat from those which prevail in this country. In America, though there is also proficiency at the traps is considered a long step toward proficiency in the field.

Coincidence in Deaths.
It was an odd coincidence, but a striking one, that the greatest genius of England, and the most masterful man in Spain passed from earth on the same day. Shakespeare and Cervantes both died April 23, 1616, the former being only fifty-two years old, and the latter sixty-nine.

AMERICAN LEAGUE LOOK FOR REVENGE

New York Correspondent Comes to Bat With View American Winner Will Cop the World's Title. By Barry Paris.

New York, June 14.—The American League is due to get sweet revenge this fall for that walloping handed it last year when the Braves smothered the Athletics. It is a much mooted question just at present what teams in the American league will have the honor of handing out the beating to the representative of the National league in the world's series. But is pretty generally conceded that nothing short of an earthquake will keep the American league pennant winners from copping the world honors.

There hasn't been enough class shown in the National league this year to win a pennant in the Sagebrush regions. If any one team had been just partly supplied with that class thing it would be out ahead so far that the other seven couldn't hit it with a 42 centimeter. The fact that the tall enders are still within easy shooting distance of the top shows that the National league clubs are all alike this season—all pretty weak.

Licorice Ball.
The "enemy ball," having been given the bat by the league bosses, the "licorice ball" has now come in prominence. Just when this form of cheating was invented is not known, but "Smoky Joe" Wood, Boston's speed invel, is the first to be accused of using it this year. Wild William Donovan buried the charge at Boston's first citizen in a recent engagement between his Yanks and the Red Sox. He buried the charge loud and often but it did him no good—the umpires ignored him and Wood only smiled.

Wood was facing the Yankees in a thirteenth inning battle. The day was dark and as it got late it grew darker. To the grandstand and press box spectators it looked very much like Wood was doing as Donovan said—plessanting the fans with licorice juice on the ball to discolor it. The pellet that the Smokey one hurled across the plate or thereabouts looked very dark—when you were able to see it at all. The Yankees didn't have much to do with it, virtually. Few of them saw the ball, except when they were in the field.

Wallace Shipping.
Another star shipped out of the big show almost without a notice recently. Scant attention was paid to the little three line "tab" that sped over the country, chomping the rears by the St. Louis Browns of Veteran Bobby Wallace.

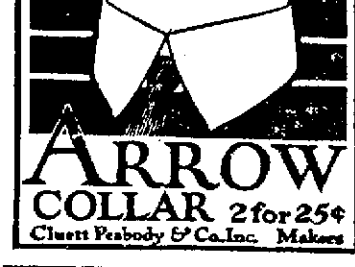

Wallace is right. This athlete deserved the title veteran if anyone ever did. Wallace was with the Mount City club nearly twenty years. And until two or three years ago he ranked among the best shortstops in the game.

Wallace never did become known nationally as he deserved to be. It probably was due to the fact that he was with the Browns. Even his greatness wasn't to survive that handicap. The veteran had a trial at managing the Browns a couple of years ago. He didn't get enough results to please his owners, however, and he was dropped back in the ranks. And after being made a private he gave the club the best he had in him—which is proof enough of his sterling qualities.

WORLD FAMOUS TROTTERS READY FOR BIG RACING MEET

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
San Francisco, June 14.—Thoroughbred trotters and pacers from eastern states, South America and Europe are stabled here awaiting the start of the signal in the first Panama Pacific Exposition light harness race meet, which opens tomorrow at the track inside the Exposition grounds. Confident predictions that many records will be broken were made. The track is very fast, while all the horses are in good condition. The grandstands, stables and equipment at the Exposition courses are the finest in the United States. Great things are expected from the W. M. Savage string of horses from Minneapolis. The Savage string was shipped here more than two months ago, and every horse has been put through its paces on the track daily during the past week. Before that the Woodage entries trained at Pleasanton, the famous course owned by R. McKeezie, the Canadian railroad magnate.

CUBS DEFEAT BOSTON IN FIRST GAME OF SERIES

Chicago, June 14.—Chicago defeated Boston 5 to 4 in the first game of the series here on Sunday. The world's champions hit Vaughn hard in the opening inning, scoring four runs. The locals tied it up in their half, when they bunched four hits, which included doubles by Knisely and Zimmerman, and a home run by Williams. Knisely's double and two sacrifices put Chicago in the lead in the third. Lavender replaced Vaughn and held the visitors to three scattered hits. The extra players on the Boston Bench had a verbal duel with Umpire Quigley and several of them were sent to the clubhouse. These included Captain Evers, Ragan, Whaling, Tyler, Gorman, Egan, Cather and Hughes.

But for the great war that is raging in Europe we would now be hard at the task of getting a line on Uncle Sam's strength for the Olympic games of 1916, scheduled to be held in Berlin just fourteen months hence. And what a wonderful collection of track and field men America could send abroad if it was possible to hold the Olympics next year! When the 1912 team was mustered on the Finland, it was said that there never would be as great a team as that one got together again, but if called upon to go after the world title in 1916 Uncle Sam could show an aggregation just as strong, if not stronger, than the Stockholm team. "It's a long way to Tipperary," but you can reach it with a want ad.

OUR ONLY COMMONER.

And now comes "our only commoner," to state that after his note of resignation was presented to the president and accepted as promptly as received, the second note to Germany was altered, was changed, was moderated, intimating that had this been done before his note was dispatched he would still have been secretary of state. It is a feeble plea to utter at this time and one that shows decided lack of judgment and foresight, let alone blind sight.

Even the Atlanta Constitution, a newspaper that has supported Bryan in good days and bad, in office and out, principally out, publishes a statement to the effect that they consider Bryan a public nuisance and will in the future publish no more communications of his. This is a severe blow but more to come. Of course one would expect the Wall Street Journal to say something caustic about Bryan and no one is disappointed when it prints the following:

"It was once said on the New York Stock Exchange of a London arbitrage house, with a lord as its senior partner, that of the three partners, one was a lord, the second was a commoner, and the third could not be commoner. There is a creditable 'give notice' maid-of-all-work trickiness about Mr. Bryan's resignation at this time.

"To no politician in our history could the adjective 'commoner' be more fully applied. When Lincoln said that the Lord must have loved the common people because he made so many of them, he used the word in the Bible sense, and he conferred upon them a nobility like his own. But when Mr. Bryan calls himself the 'Commoner,' self-respecting people can only wonder what, in the name of all that is patriotic, the superlative may be?

"The peculiar indecency of such a resignation before the issue of a firm note to Germany lies in the implication that some part of American public opinion is not holding up the hands of the president in this emergency.

FLAG DAY.

Today is the anniversary of the act of congress of June 14, 1777, authorizing the stars and stripes as a national flag. This was before the adoption of the Constitution, but on June 14, 1818, after the second war with England, congress gave the flag as it is today, except for the number of stars, official approval. This flag has played its part in the world's history. Today we commemorate its birth in the humble home of Betsy Ross, the Philadelphia seamstress.

Previous to this date in 1777, the colonists, fighting against odds for their freedom, had carried many banners. The pine tree on a white background, the rattlesnake, on a red and white striped flag, a striped red and white bunting with the red cross of St. George in the corner with blue and white cross lines and then the Betsy Ross flag with its six white stripes, its seven red ones and its field with white field with thirteen stars, all in a circle in the center.

John Paul Jones hoisted this latter flag to his mast head when he sailed up the English channel and fought the English ships at home. In 1801 it was seen off Tripoli of the Barbary states, compelling the savage pirates to recognize the laws of shipping and life. It flew at the mast head of the vessels of the little American navy in the troublesome days of 1812. It flew over Perry's ships at the battle of Lake Erie, and Jackson's army at New Orleans.

It led Scott's army into the citadel of the famous City of Mexico in the late Forties and sailed proudly into the closed harbors of Japan at the mast head of Commodore Perry's little squadron that opened the orient to trade. It waved on the bleak shores of the great northwest territory, it crossed the Rockies and saved vast territory for future generations. It waved proudly on many a battlefield during the sad days of the Sixties, and flies over a united nation, north, south, east and west today.

It has traveled to the frozen reaches of the North Pole, to the Philippines, to the Forbidden City of the Chinese, it waves over the canal zone and this red, white and blue bunting of ours has never been defeated and has carried enlightenment and freedom to the ends of the world. It is meet and due that we pay tribute to its natal day the country through, particularly at this time when dreams of strife and warfare are feared on both sides of the Atlantic.

WHAT A CONTRAST.

German "culture" and Italian forbearance are brought into sharp distinction when the order of the Italian military authorities to steamships and ships to spare the remains of the famous Roman amphitheatre at Fola, the Austrian naval base on the Adriatic, is in refreshing contrast to the German course in the cases of Louvain, Malines, Rheims, and other cities of Belgium and France. It is an act of civilization that will win the grateful applause of observing nations, just as the vandalism of the Germans won anger and execration.

That the Germans were not always so proved in the case of Strasburg, when they besieged that city in the Franco-Prussian war. The German artillerymen were instructed so to train their guns as to fire over the platform of the lacking spire of the cathedral and never to hit the cathedral. So well did they follow their instructions that the cathedral escaped unscathed, though Strasburg had to capitulate to the German army.

Instead of hampering the work of the street department by driving over and through the freshly oiled streets with teams and automobiles, the citizens generally should aid the work as much as possible by keeping off of the freshly treated pavements and using the other side of the road. This department has been greatly handicapped by the wet weather and is even now working under a pressure to finish within a specified time. It is up to the citizens to help as much as possible and not hinder and retard the workers by carelessness. It is not permitted in other communities and should not be in Janesville.

SHOULD AID WORK.

Von Dernberg has left the shores of the United States for his native country. He violated all the sacred rights of the guest, abused the privileges accorded to him, misrepresented both his own and this country and intimidated the minds of many to rash utterances and printings. He was one of the episodes of the European war and if he reaches his beloved Fatherland safely he will doubtless be well rewarded for his campaign of misrepresentation in this country.

Governor Philipp is trying hard to place the possible blame for the defeat of his endeavors to reduce the burden of taxation, if it comes, on the proper shoulders. It is now up to the senate to take final action on the majority of the measures which constitute the administration's plans for the immediate future and it is hoped they will play their part like men and vote with a thought to the taxpayers and not for personal ambition and future individual preferment.

This has been a great spring for growing of weeds and such like, but unfortunately many of the crops need good, warm days and nights before they will show any decided progress. However, farmers who used steam in their seed beds now have the advantage of others and we may expect a fair tobacco crop at least.

The tide of immigration is again turning westward and the modern steel palaces of Luxe are a travesty of the simple ox team that wended its way across the great plains sixty-five years ago.

And then at times we've stood aghast And marveled at your daring.

But pity us poor devils now That summer's in the air.

We must conform to custom. Though 'twould make a preacher swear.

We dare not cast our coats aside. At least not all the while.

For fear some one will us deride Or sting with cutting smile.

It seems to be our cruel fate To follow Fashion's stern dictate

And swelter while we wait and wait Until she sets the proper date.

An argument consists in a series of misstatements made in turn by the parties to it.

A woman's interest in an offense against herself dies out in time, but she never forgives the man who attacks her husband.

Eph Wiley, who has followed the incidents of the war closely, says an ignorant man is one who gets his information from the news sent out of Petrograd.

If a man can get his own consent to make an absurd or preposterous statement the probabilities are that the newspapers will print it.

It is the rule that no community or country does a particularly fool thing unless it has been inspired by a press agent.

MAJESTIC

A King Baggot picture, a Pauline Bush two-reeler, a Billie Ritchie rib-tickler, and a Harry Myers-Rosemary Theby romance—such is tonight's program. All of you who are familiar with the players' names know that here is a program such as you rarely see. You'll enjoy it.

The Masterpictures

start tomorrow, and will be shown on Tuesday and Friday of each week. They will all be four-and five-reel productions, the supreme efforts of the Mutual studios, of which the renowned D. W. Griffith has full supervision. If you love a keen, red-blooded story, see this first, "The Outlaw," a picture produced in Mexico and telling you why that pitiable country is as it is.

Beginning now, Majestic programs will be more attractive than ever. Having the Masterpictures every Tuesday and Friday will give a better supply of Universal pictures, with longer programs and better selections, for the other days of the week. Thursday of this week will see Mary Fuller in a three-reeler of unusual quality; Friday, the Masterpicture "Enoch Arden"; Saturday another King Baggot feature; and Sunday, an excellent Warren Kerrigan two-reeler.

PRESIDENT DALAND GIVES BACCALAUREATE SERMON TO MILTON GRADUATES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Milton, June 14.—Last evening at the Seventh-day Baptist church in Milton the baccalaureate sermon was preached by President William C. Daland, D. D. The Rev. L. C. Randall of Milton, and the Rev. Henry N. Jordan of Milton Junction assisted in the service. The church choir furnished the music. The hymns were: "A mighty Fortress is Our God," "The Church's Hope," and "Blessed Be the Wave that Brought the Gospel to the Shore." The anthem was "O for a Closer Walk with God," by Myles B. Foster, a hymn-anthem with solo song by Miss Alberta Crandall.

President Daland's theme was "The Estimation of Life." His text was, "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." Psalm 90:12. He spoke of the spiritual philosophy of the Hebrew people and the influence of Hebrew poetry, exhibiting the poetic Psalm as typical of poetry as a criticism of the Hebrew mind, and on the figurative use of the word number, as suggesting intellectual development and accurate estimation, use of vital organs to the Hebrew mind and spiritual conceptions, thus showing the meaning of the text to be, "So teach us to estimate our life that we may make it the central purpose of our effort to gain wisdom." Wisdom, he explained, according to the Hebrew idea, and in that connection he elucidated the Hebrew literature as exhibited in the books of Job, the Song of Songs, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastes. Reverence, he insisted, is the essential element in wisdom, the beginning whereof is the fear of God.

Our estimation of life is often wrong and generally imperfect. Rightly viewed it is the attitude of the heart. True wisdom is essentially reverence, and reverence is the attitude of the heart. It is like life itself a matter of the heart. Of this wisdom God is Himself the source. It is gained not without faith. It comes in answer to prayer and is wrought by the Holy Spirit within the soul.

In his closing appeal President Daland urged the graduates to put their implicit trust in God, to seek God's estimation of our lives, and to apply themselves diligently to the attainment of that ideal which is exemplified in Jesus Christ as the Wisdom of God incarnate.

VIRGINIA PARTITION DEBT CASE SETTLED

Controversy Arising About State Debts When West Virginia Became Separate State, Finally Adjusted.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, June 14.—The supreme court today decided the long standing Virginia-West Virginia debt case, holding West Virginia had to pay $12,393,928 as its net share of the Virginia debt at the time of the partition of the state.

The report of the late Charles E. Littlefield was upheld in all particulars except one minor finding. The court held that West Virginia was entitled to its share of the assets arising from the original principal debt and fixed that amount at $2,966,000.

West Virginia is ordered by the court to pay $8,173 in interest computed at 3% from 1891 to date, and 4% from 1891 to 1891.

First "Saratoga Chips."

One of the best ways of cooking potatoes was accidentally discovered through the unpunctuality of a train. When the line from Paris to St. Germain was opened, the first train carried an official party, for whom lunch was ordered. The meal was fixed for noon, and shortly before that hour some potatoes were put on to fry. A few minutes afterward a message came that the train would probably be delayed for an hour, so the potatoes were taken off the fire, but left in the pan. Then came a second message. "Train just arriving," and the potatoes were hurriedly put back to fry again. When the party sat down to lunch the potatoes were brought on with a steak. To the delight of the guests, each chip was then found to be blown out like a small, crisp golden balloon. The cook had unconsciously invented pommes de terre souffles.—London Chronicle.

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH K. CAMERON

"HIMSELF" BOOKS.
All fiction, or rather all that is not simply parrot talk, is, to some extent, biography.
An author writes either about his own experiences and emotions, or what his own experiences and emotions have taught him by analogy.
But some novels are much more autobiographical than others. Almost every writer has written one book which is himself. And to my mind, the best book is nearly always the best. Of course, you understand that I don't mean that all the incidents in the book actually happened to the author. Far from it. These autobiographies are not photographs, they are more like impressionistic paintings.
Dickens' Picture of Himself.
Take Dickens. I believe "David Copperfield" is generally conceded to be his own story. It is also rated as among the best, if not absolutely the best, and certainly the most generally beloved of the great man's works.
"Pendennis" is Thackeray's "himself" book. I have not read enough of Thackeray to feel that I have any right to pass an opinion upon his writing, but Thackeray is one of my favorite authors and so I feel justified in mentioning the fact that "Pendennis" is to me his finest work.
"Jane Eyre," which in some of its incidents is so close an autobiography as to have aroused tremendous resentment among those whose treatment of the heroine is described, is certainly the best known and best liked of Charlotte Brontë's books.
The Real Cranford.
"Cranford" is emphatically an autobiographical book and even learned critics are unanimous in agreeing with ordinary readers that nothing Mrs. Gaskell ever did, touches this exquisite record of her visits to her old friends in Cranford (Knutsford in real life).
"Pride and Prejudice," I believe, is Jane Austen's herself book and is the most widely read, and in the minds of many, the best. Although, since all her books are pretty much autobiography it does not stand head and shoulders above the rest.
I doubt if there are many books in the whole world more widely read and more universally loved than "Little Women," and of course I don't need to tell you that that is the closest kind of autobiography.
The Fun of Guessing.
With the authors of our own day, we have no historians to tell us what is autobiography and what is not, but it's lots of fun to guess.
"Sentimental Tommy," I feel sure, is the story of the little boy Barrie. Bunker Bean is another hero whose personality seems autobiographical for two reasons—first, because it doesn't seem possible that anyone could have imagined such states of mind and, secondly, because he is so much above the rest of his creator's work.
A magazine which was advertising its willingness to pay a high price for good short stories, named sincerity as the most important quality of a good story. Tenderly, love, the love of fellow beings, seems to me another. Now these are the qualities that the autobiographical stories are by their nature richest in. What wonder that we love them?

$2 EACH MINUTE FOR LOVELY GERALDINE

Miss Geraldine Farrar. The Metropolitan Opera company has just gone to California, where she will act before the moving picture camera in a production of Carmen, at a salary of $2 a minute. Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am eighteen years old and I am engaged to a young man twenty-one years old. Are we too young to marry?
(2) What would you consider a nice wedding present for a girl twenty years old?
(3) I have a brother who invites friends of his every evening to the house. He takes them into the parlor and plays the phonograph and piano. But what would you advise me to do?
(4) I want to invite a few girls and boys and have a little party. Do you think it would be better to have a lawn party or a dance, and what refreshments would you advise me to have?
MADELINE.
(1) When one should marry is not a question of age, but of financial ability to marry and be happy. The girl are sure that they can be happy together. I think it is all right for them to marry. I am afraid, however, that you and your fiancé do not know your minds. A man rarely chooses the same type of girl at twenty-five that he would have chosen at twenty.
(2) A berry spoon, sugar spoon, pie knife or cut glass or a picture.
(3) Arrange it so that each of you can have certain nights a week to entertain company in the parlor without interfering with the other. I should think some of the time you would enjoy sharing it together.
(4) I think a lawn party would be better than a dance for this time of the year. You can make the yard so pretty with Japanese lanterns if you care to. Serve the cream and cake, or punch and cake.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am married for years and never have been very happy. The first part of my married life my husband was after women. Now he is so selfish and cross to me that it doesn't seem to me that I can live with him. I can't live with him and I can't live without him. I have helped make his money by saving and being a good woman. Could I leave him and make him give me a generous allowance or have I got to stand the rest of my life? He is a rich man and my intentions are to leave his money elsewhere but to his family. Kindly advise me what to do.
ANGEL FACE.
I can't tell whether you have grounds for a divorce or not from the little you have told me. Consult a lawyer, not a cheap lawyer but one who will advise you according to your best interests. If you get a divorce, you can either get alimony in proportion to your husband's property or you can get a settlement to support you and your children, if you have any, and be perfectly independent.
Great Truth.
You can't make a gentleman out of a frock coat and a silk hat.

Glimpses of Married Life

By Mrs. Eva Leonard

"Oh, Dick, the Scotts have invited us to go on an automobile trip tomorrow. I'm so delighted. They can't see much more of them, and it will be such a lark."
"Well, I was in pleased excitement. Isn't it rather late in the season for autoing?" asked Dick. "The wind is so cold when going at a good speed. You won't think of taking the baby, will you?"
"Mary says she will give up going home tomorrow and take care of him for me. She is so careful of him I believe it will be all right to leave him, don't you?"
"Certainly, dear, than to try to take him, replied Dick. "Where are they going?"
"To Farlow. We will have a lunch to eat on the way. They will take their thermos bottles with hot coffee. Neil was so evidently intent on making the trip a pleasure that Dick responded: "If we can find a sheltered nook, out of the wind, where we can eat our lunch, it will be all right."
"I brought Dorothy," said Mrs. Scott. "It is the nurse's day off, and besides she doesn't like to ride. This is her blanket; without it she can go nowhere. The women and Dorothy were stowed away in the tonneau. Dorothy was chattering pleasantly, while the little girl played with her blanket, holding it up to see if it fluttered in the wind. Suddenly a scream rent the air.
"My blanket!" wailed the small maid.
"Did it go out, Dorothy?" Oh, Jack, Jack!" called Mrs. Scott. The wind carried her voice away from him and the moving train, leaving an animated discussion. All this while the machine was putting a good stretch of road between the blanket and its sobbing owner. Finally both women called in chorus and the din reached the ears of the father of the wailing child.
"What did you let her drop it out for?" he asked. "Here I must walk back a long way to find the thing," and away he trudged.
When the blanket and its suffering owner were reunited they fared forth again, but an evil fate pursued them. At a sudden turn in the road the door of the tonneau flew open and the two thermos bottles rolled out and were broken, the coffee pouring over the road.
"I forgot to faster the door," said Mrs. Scott.
"Couldn't you see that the door was coming open?" her husband asked.
"No, it was the lurch of the machine as we turned the corner that opened it."
"Now, we've no coffee and this cold day a picnic dinner with nothing warm to drink will not be very enjoyable," said Mrs. Scott.
"Let's go to the hotel at Barstow. It's only five miles further on," suggested his wife.
"I've an idea a certain maid of tender years will make that anything but a pleasant experience," he said, looking at Dorothy.
"You're a pessimist today," commented his wife, smiling brightly at her. "Have you anything better to suggest?"
It was evident that he was barren of ideas, so dinner was ordered at the hotel, and they warmed themselves at a wood stove in a stuffy parlor while waiting for it to cook.
Mr. Scott's mood gloomed forebodings could not have pictured anything so disagreeable as the baby's behavior at dinner. The entire quar-

Household Hints

CANNING AND PRESERVING.
Cherry and Pineapple Marmalade.—Wash, drain, seed cherries and run through meat grinder. Much of the juice is lost in this process, but long continued cooking makes the flavor strong and removing part of the juice remedies this in part. Peel and slice the pineapple and run it through meat grinder. Mix with the cherry juice a fourth to a third as much pineapple. Place mixture on fire and cook the whole slowly until it becomes thick. Stir almost constantly to prevent burning. Pour the marmalade into jelly glasses and cover it with melted paraffin.
Branded Cherries.—One pint pitted cherries, three-fourths pound sugar; alternate layers and stand over night. Then heat juice, put in cherries and hold until transparent. Put in jar and add one tablespoon brandy at last before sealing.
Gooseberry Jam.—Four quarts real ripe gooseberries, three large oranges; wash and put oranges through food chopper, add four quarts sugar. Boil all together until tender. Seal in jars or jelly glasses.
Green pepper shredded, three tablespoons minced onion, one and one-half cups boiled rice, salt and paprika to taste. Fry bacon, add tomato, peppers and onion. Season and let cook until thoroughly done. Then add rice and serve hot.
Colorado Salad.—Remove stones from red and white cherries; cut cherries in halves. Remove pulp from oranges, remove skins from bananas and cut in one-half inch cubes. Mix equal quantities of each and mix with French dressing. Serve in cups made from lettuce leaves.
Banana-Cake.—One cup sugar, one and one-half cups butter, half cup sweet milk, three eggs, one teaspoon soda, two teaspoons cream of tartar, two cups flour, flavor to taste. Filler: Mash two bananas to a cream, stir into boiled frosting and put between layers. To be eaten same day as made.

THE TABLE.

Tomato Shortcake.—Make a baking powder biscuit dough, roll it about an inch thick. Place it in a pan and cover with a layer of sliced ripe tomatoes. Cover with butter and sugar. On top of this place a layer of sliced onions. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover all with a layer of sliced green peppers and bake.
Filled Onions.—Boil onions, but be sure not to overboil. Better take five or ten minutes before you consider them done (good round white onions). Press out the centers (with the thumb) and fill with pork sausage meat mixed with a few bread crumbs. Bake until done—about fifteen to twenty minutes.
Potatoes on the Half Shell.—Wash six large potatoes, bake till done, cut lengthwise and take out of the shell. Put potatoes in a pan, beat up two eggs, butter size of egg, little milk, take a small bunch of parsley, cut real fine; stir this all together and put back in potato shells, put in oven to brown, then take out and serve hot.
Strawberry Shortcake.—This, if made according to directions, will almost melt in your mouth: Two cups flour, one-half cup lard, two level teaspoons baking powder. Sift flour with baking powder, add lard and with a spoon thoroughly mix; add water enough to make a soft dough. Take half the dough and roll out to fit the bottom of a large pie pan. Spread this over with butter. Take remaining dough, roll out same size and place on top of first. Bake in moderately hot oven. When the brown color, remove from oven, lift off top layer and spread with halved strawberries sprinkled with granulated sugar. Replace top layer, cover with strawberries and sugar.
Chocolate Spice Cake.—One and one-half cups sugar, one-half cup butter, two eggs, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg, one-half teaspoon all-spice, two tablespoons cocoa, one teaspoon soda dissolved in the sour milk, two cups flour.
Tasty Veal Dish.—One pound veal stew, three medium-sized onions, one-half small bottle catsup. Fry onions till brown. Add meat, fry till fairly tender, add cup of water, let simmer till tender, add catsup, salt and pepper to taste, cook five minutes, serve hot.
Spanish Rice.—Two slices bacon diced, one cup steamed tomatoes, one

MAJORITY OF GERMAN SHIPS OF SUNKEN VESSELS ARE RESCUED BY ENGLISH
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, May 14.—Of the crews of German warships lost in action, 1,282 members were rescued from the water by British sailors. In addition about 40 who were picked up by the British submarine H-4 in the North sea last August were given boats, provisions and a compass in order to proceed to Heligoland, as they could not be taken on board. When the Mainz was sunk in the first month of the war, 353 Germans were picked up, and 283 were rescued from the Bluecher in the action off Doggerbank. The list includes only the rescues made by the British warships engaged and not cases where the crews were saved by other means.
The complaint has long been made that the German made no effort to rescue the British sailors in the Falkland Island battle. Altogether only one officer and 12 men, who belonged to the destroyer Crusader, have been taken from the sea and made prisoners by the Germans. Six officers and 76 men from the destroyer Maori were captured, but they were rowing in their own boats after their vessel was sunk.
FRENCH ASTRONOMERS HAVE SEEN CANOPUS CENTER OF UNIVERSE
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Paris, June 14.—Canopus, supposed by some astronomers to be the center of the universe, has recently been seen from French observatories in Algiers and Morocco by astronomers who have reported their observation to Camille Flammarion.
"While by reason of its distance, Canopus is, to us, reduced to the proportions of a star," he says, "it is a formidable sun, two million four hundred and twenty times larger in volume than our sun; it is equal in volume to three billion one hundred forty-six million earths. It's distance from us is the equivalent of four hundred eighty-nine years of light travel. The rays of Canopus that reach us today started on their way in 1426, only one officer and 12 men, who dredged seventy-five trillion miles. Canopus is invisible in northern latitudes, but may be seen from the observatories of Constantine and Boghar in Africa."

With Margery Grierson, to question was to ascertain; and the Pullman conductor, once more checking his diagrams in Section 11, offered the readiest means of enlightenment. A few minutes later Margery rejoined her father in the private compartment.

"Do you remember the nice-looking young man who sat at the table with us in the Chateau last night?" she began abruptly.

The gray-haired Jasper nodded. He had an excellent memory for faces. "What did you think of him?" The query followed the nod like a nimble boxer's return blow.

"I thought he paid a whole lot more attention to you than he did to his supper. Why?"

"He is on this car, sick with a fever of some kind, and out of his head. He is going to Wahaska."

"How do you know it's the same one?"

"I made the conductor take me to see him. He talked to me in Italian and called me 'Carlotta mia.'"

"Humph! he didn't look like a dago."

"He isn't; it's just because he is delicious."

There was a long pause; broken finally by a curt "Well!" from the father.

"I've been thinking," was the slow response. "Of course, there is a chance that he has friends in Wahaska, and that someone will be at the train to meet him. But it is only a chance."

"Why doesn't the conductor telephone ahead and find out?"

"He doesn't know the man's name. I tried to get him to look for a card, or to break into the suitcases under the berth, but he says the regulations won't let him."

"Well," said the father again, this time with a more decided upward inflection. Then he added: "You've made up your mind what you're going to do; say it."

Margery's decision was announced crisply. "There is no hospital to send him to—which is Wahaska's shame. Maybe he will be met and taken care of by his friends; if he is, well and good; if he isn't, we'll put him in the carriage and take him home with us."

The cast-iron smile with the indulgent attachment wrinkled frostily upon Jasper Grierson's heavy face.

"The Good Samaritan act, eh? I've known you a long time, Madgie, but I never can tell when you're going to break out in a brand-new spot. Didn't lose any of your unexpectedness in Florida, did you?"

Miss Margery tossed her pretty head, and the dark eyes snapped.

"Somebody in the family has to think of something besides making money," she retorted. "Please lend me your pencil; I want to do some writing."

All other gifts apart, Miss Grierson could boast of a degree of executive ability, little inferior to her father's;

did boast of it when the occasion offered; and by the time the whistle was sounding for Wahaska, all the arrangements had been made for the provisional rescue of the sick man in lower six.

At the station a single inquiry served to give the Good Samaritan intention the right of way. There were no friends to meet lower six; but the Grierson carriage was waiting, with the coachman and a Mercedes gardener for bearers. From that to putting the sick man to bed in one of the guest chambers of the lake-fronting mansion at the opposite end of the town was a mere bit of routine for one so capable as Miss Grierson; and twenty minutes after the successful transfer she had Doctor Farnham at the nameless one's bedside and was telephoning the college infirmary for a nurse.

Naturally, there were explanations to be made when the doctor came down. To her first anxious question the answer came gravely: "You have a very sick man on your hands, Miss Margery." Then the inevitable: "Who is he?"

She spread her hands in a pretty attestation of embarrassment.

"What will you think of me, Doctor Farnham, when I tell you that I haven't the slightest atom of an idea?"

Charlotte's father was a small man, with kindly eyes and the firm, straight-lined mouth of his Puritan forbears. "Tell me about it," he said concisely. She told him.

A shrewd smile flickered for an instant in the kindly eyes of Wahaska's best-beloved physician.

"Almost anyone else would have found plenty of other things to do—or not to do," was his comment. "Are you prepared to go on, Miss Margery?"

There were fine little lines coming and going between Miss Margery's straight black brows. "We needn't do it by halves, doctor," she said decisively. "If it would be better to wire St. Paul or Minneapolis and get a trained nurse—"

"You'd stand the extra expense, of course," laughed the doctor. "You are all the world's good angel when you set out to do, Miss Margery. And I'll send somebody before bedtime. Meanwhile, there's nothing to do but to keep your patient quiet; and he'll do that for himself for a few hours. I gave him a bit of anodyne before I came down."

Margery went to the outer door with her kindly counselor, playing the part of the gracious hostess as one who is, or who means to be, precisely letter-perfect; and after he was gone, she went slowly upstairs and let herself softly into the room of shaded lights. The sick man was resting quietly, and he did not stir when she crossed to the bed and laid a cool palm on his forehead.

"You poor castaway!" she murmured. "I wonder who you are, and to whom you belong? I suppose somebody has got to be mean and sneaky and find out. Would you rather it would be I than someone else, who might care even less than I do?"

The sleeping man opened unseeing eyes and closed them again heavily.

"I found the money, Carlotta mia; you didn't know that, did you?" he muttered; and then the narcotic seized and held him again.

His clothes were on a chair, and when she had carried them to a light that could be shaded completely from the bed and its occupant, she searched the pockets one by one. It was a little surprising to find all but two of them quite empty; no cards, no letters, no pen, pencil, pocketknife, or purse; nothing but a handkerchief, and in one pocket of the waistcoat a small roll of paper money, a few coins and two small keys.

She held the coat up to the electric and examined it closely; the workmanship, the trimmings. It was not tailor-made, she decided, and by all the little signs and tokens it was quite new. And the same was true of the other garments. But there was no tag or trademark on any of them to show where they came from.

Failing to find the necessary clue to the castaway's identity in this preliminary search, she went on resolutely, dragging the two suitcases over to the lighted corner and unlocking them with the keys taken from the pocket of the waistcoat.

The first yielded nothing but clothing, all new and evidently unworn. The second held more clothing, a man's toilet appliances, also new and unused, but apparently no scrap of writing or hint of a name. With a little sigh of bafflement she took the last tightly rolled bundle of clothing from the suitcase. While she was lifting it a pistol fell out.

In times past, Jasper Grierson's daughter had known weapons and their faults and excellences. "That places him—a little," she mused, putting the pistol aside after she had glanced at it: "He's from the East; he doesn't know a gun from a piece of common hardware."

Further search in the tightly rolled bundle was rewarded by the discovery of a typewritten book manuscript, unsigned, and with it an oblong packet wrapped in brown paper and tied with twine. She slipped the string and removed the wrapping. The brick-shaped packet proved to be a thick block of bank notes, held together by heavy rubber bands snapped over the ends.

While the little ornate clock on the dressing case was whirring softly and chiming the hour she stared at the money-block as if the sight of it had fascinated her. Then she sprang up and flew to the door, not to escape, but to turn the key noiselessly in the lock. Secure against interruption, she pulled the rubber bands from the packet. The block was built up in layers, each layer banded with a paper slip on which was printed in red the name of the certifying bank and the amount. "Bayou State Security, $5,000." There were twenty of these layers in all, nineteen of them unbroken. But through the printed figures on the twentieth a pen-stroke had been drawn, and underneath was written "$4,000."

Quite coolly and methodically Margery Grierson verified the bank's count as indicated by the paper bands. There were one hundred thousand dollars, lacking the one thousand taken from the broken packet. The counting completed, she replaced the rubber bands and the brown paper wrapping. Then she repacked the suitcases, arranging the contents as nearly as might be just as she had found them, locking the cases and returning the keys to the waistcoat pocket from which she had taken them.

When all was done, she tiptoed across to the bed, with the brown paper packet under her arm. The sick man stirred, uneasily and began to mutter again. She bent to catch the words, and when she heard, the light of understanding leaped swiftly into the dark eyes. For the mumbled words were the echo of a fierce threat: "Sign it: sign it now, or, by God, I'll shoot to kill!"

The robbery of the Bayou State Security bank was already an old story when Mr. Matthew Broffin, chief of the New Orleans branch of a notable detective agency, took over the case of the bank robbery a few days after his return from Central America.

Since two members of his own staff had fired and missed their mark in St. Louis, there was a blunder to be retrieved.

After a week of patient groping, Broffin was obliged to confess that the problem of identification was too difficult to be solved on conventional lines. It presented no point of attack. With neither a name nor a pictured face for reference, inquiry was crippled at the very outset. None of the many boarding and rooming houses he visited had lost a lodger answering the verbal description of the missing man. Very reluctantly, for bulldog tenacity was the detective's ruling characteristic, he was forced to the conclusion that the only untried solution lay in Teller Johnson's unfortified impression that the chance meeting at his wicket was not the first meeting between the robber and the young woman with the draft to be cashed.

It was the slenderest of threads, and Broffin realized sweatingly how difficult it might be to follow. Assuming that there had been a previous meeting or meetings, or rather the passing acquaintance which was all the young woman's later betrayal of the man made conceivable, would the writer of the accusing letter be willing to add to her burden of responsibility by giving the true name and standing of the man whose real identity—if she knew it—she had been careful to conceal in the unsigned note to Mr. Galbraith? Broffin read the note again—"a deck-hand, whose name on the mate's book is John Wesley Gavitt," was the description she had given. It might, or it might not, be an equivocation; but the longer Broffin dwelt upon it the more he leaned toward the conclusion to which his theory and the few known facts pointed. The young woman knew the man in his proper person; she had been reluctant to betray him—that, he decided, was sufficiently proved by the lapse of time intervening between the date of her note and its postmark date; having finally decided to give him up, she had told only what was absolutely necessary, leaving him free to conceal his real name and identity if he would—and could.

Having come thus far on the road to conviction, Broffin knew what he had to do and set about doing it methodically. A telegram to the clerk of the Belle Julie served to place the steamer in the lower river; and boarding a night train he planned to reach Vicksburg in time to intercept the witnesses whose evidence would determine roughly how many hundreds or thousands of miles he could safely cut out of the zigzag journeyings to which the following up of the hypothetical clue would lead.

For, cost what it might, he was determined to find the writer of the unsigned letter.

Buying "On Tick."

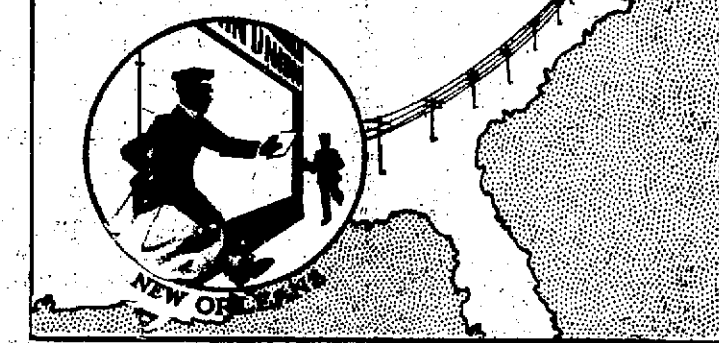

Buying "on tick" is not new slang, but goes back to the seventeenth century. It is stated in a letter dated 1661: "The Mermaid Tavern is lately broke, our ticks amounting to £1500." And in another document a little later it is said: "Every one runs upon tick."

Resinol

Babies with eczema, teething rash, chafing, and other tormenting skin troubles need Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. They soothe and heal the irritated skin, stop all itching, and let the little sufferers sleep. Babies bathed regularly with Resinol Soap seldom have skin eruptions.

Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap have been used by physicians and nurses for many years, and contain nothing which could possibly irritate the tenderest skin. Sold by all druggists.

Proved by Experiment.

One of the young ensigns who was acting as teacher on the battleship Texas, asked the question: "What are the two principal parts of a sentence?" expecting to get the answer, "Subject and predicate." An old salt scratched his head in perplexity, and at last replied, "Solitary confinement and bread and water."—The Sailor's Magazine.

"Henry you—you want to leave—She could not finish for the great, choking sob constricting her throat, suffocating her.

He wheeled upon her fiercely, plunged into a rage of his own creating, but madam flashed him a warning look as Ann sank back in her chair.

"My dear," in the great soprano's voice were all the tones that had quickened tears in the hearts of audiences throughout the world. "You must not make it any harder than it is already. Don't you know that I understand; that I am a woman, and that I understand your pain at parting?" She moved a step closer, placing her hand upon Ann's shoulder and turning upon the two men.

"You have your choice, Mr. Merwin—milkman or a Voice. I had the choice and Voice won. It has brought me fame, wealth, honor, glory; it has lost me all that my heart would have clung to did I consider happiness alone. I do not say that it is always so, but the price of fame is often misery. The price of Fame must be paid and Fame is a hard bargainer."

Ann looked up eagerly, timidly, yet with a strange ferocity to catch the impression upon her husband. What she read upon his face filled her with swift self-reproach.

"I think I understand," she whispered softly. "I want the fame for him."

IV.

Strange the quips and whimsies of Chance, elusive Chance.

Years that seemed interminable, years of goading desperation, discouragement, self-sacrifice, endurance stretched behind Henry Merwin as he halted a moment at the stage door of the New York Grand Opera house to allow one of the stars to enter. A bitter smile curved his lips, lips that had tightened since the days, when the milk route alone oppressed his mind, as he slowly made-up in the maid dressing room for a peasant in the opening act of "Pagliacci." He was a chorus man—only a chorus man.

From below he could hear the strains of "Cavalleria Rusticana" which preceded "Pagliacci" and the voice of Cabosso, greatest of all tenors. Cabosso, who stood where the ignorant young milkman had dreamed of standing; Cabosso, the announcement of whose singing was sufficient to pack the great house.

The soul of the artist within him struggled impotently at his situation, the difference between the dream and the reality. Cabosso singing Canio, the bitter, disillusioned pantaloone, when everything that life could hold was his; and he, Henry Merwin, with a voice no less than that of the star, sang among the peasants. Unconsciously he threw himself into the role of the man, compelled to amuse the public with his antics, compelled to don grease paint when he wished to smear his face with the blood of rival and unfaithful wife. His lips opened and the tenor aria at the close of the first act poured from his throat.

He stopped abruptly as a hand fell upon his shoulder, biting his lips in mute embarrassment as he looked up into the eyes of the stage manager. It dawned upon him that he was transgressing the rules of the house in singing, that in all likelihood, he would be discharged. And suddenly he was seized with a vast, overwhelming desire to hold this position that a moment before had roused all his resentment.

"Are you up on the role—on Canio?" The words were crisp, brittle, mandatory.

For a moment he did not understand, then a quick flush mantled his cheeks at what he took for sarcasm. A hot answer was on the tip of his tongue, checked only in time as he read upon the faces about him that the man was really in earnest. He rose swiftly, his hand gripping at the lapel of the stage manager's coat even as the man fairly dragged him down the narrow, iron stairway toward the director, who raged about in the wings, his face the picture of misery.

He laughed ironically as his underling whispered to him, sizing the chorus-man up and down.

CHURCH COMPLETES TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF CHRISTIAN WORK

Anniversary Services at St. John's German Lutheran Church Are Well Attended.

With many out of town guests present special services were held at the new St. John's German Lutheran church, corner of North Bluff street and Peace Court, yesterday, in celebration of the twenty-fifth year of the church's existence.

The anniversary sermon, which was delivered in the morning by the Rev. W. Staehling of Watpau, was in German. The main theme of the speaker was "The word of God and its influence upon Christianity and on this particular congregation." It is, said the speaker, "the greatest gift upon which this church is built." His further remarks were concerning the work of the church and how "the word of God," the greatest gift with in reach of man, has been its guiding spirit.

The evening services were in English. The sermon was by the Rev. C. J. Wilke of Madison, who chose as his text the twenty-seventh verse of the fifth chapter of the Epistle of St. Paul to the Ephesians, as follows: "That he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having a spot or a wrinkle, or any such thing, but that it should be holy and without blemish."

"My Christian friends," he began, "as we meet here this evening the thoughts which are uppermost in our minds are these: 'The Lord has blessed us and we shall follow him.' This congregation being permitted to look back upon twenty-five years of growth should find cause for rejoicing. I am not familiar with the past of this congregation. I have been acquainted with it only since the present pastor has taken his place among you. But it is certainly true that the Lord has singularly blessed his faithful efforts."

"But we are not here to comment on the things which have been accomplished, but to give praise to God who has made all this possible. For what is the purpose of this all but that it may serve to glorify the name of the Almighty? It is for this reason that the church is established with the Lord Jesus Christ as its cornerstone. The church was founded by the Lord. There is no instance like it on the earth. It is glorious because of its Divine origin and because of its Divine help. It is in the church that the Lord would live. No other organization can claim such an origin. God the Almighty has founded His church for himself. Therefore we can truthfully apply this term, 'a glorious church.' It is for this church that Christ was humbled and died. It is for this church that men suffered, martyrs died, and apostles labored. "It is a glorious church also because of its ultimate triumph. The beginning of the church was lowly but its final victory shall be great. The church militant shall be merged into the church triumphant. If all these things are true how necessary that we become connected with this church and that we be identified with her interests."

In the afternoon service Reverend P. Fiebler of Beloit spoke and the Reverend S. W. Fuchs, the pastor of the congregation, gave a short history of the church.

It was in the year 1890, in the winter, when the church was founded. The first minister was the Rev. George Beloit, who was called here from Beloit and who served until his death, seventeen years ago. The first church was on the present site and was reconstructed from half of an old double house; the other half was used for a parsonage. It is still owned by the congregation. Upon his death the place of Rev. Kaempfelein was taken by the Rev. Paul Werth, who was pastor for eleven years, during which time new and up-to-date parsonage was built on the hill in back of the house. He was followed by the present pastor, who has served for six years ago. During the last several years the needs of the congregation became such that two years ago it was necessary to erect a new church edifice. Accordingly, the church of modest size but of elegant furnishings was built on the corner lot. Special emphasis was laid by all the speakers upon the exceedingly bright future which the church faces at present.

HENRY SIEGEL BEFORE JUSTICE CLARK AT GENESEO

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Geneseo, N. Y., June 14.—Just a year from the day he was convicted for using the money in his private bank which he operated in connection with the department store in New York, Henry Siegel appeared before Justice Clark of the Livingston County Supreme Court today to make his report on what he had done to restore the savings to the Siegel bank depositors.

In suspending sentence a year ago Justice Clark gave him until the second Monday in June to make good to the depositors. Two weeks ago the depositors formally accepted his offer of $150,000 cash and the balance of the $250,000 due them in the form of installment payments. Siegel intends re-entering business and paying back the full amount.

THORSON ANALYZES PETER'S CHARACTER

POINTS OF STRENGTH AND WEAKNESS IN APOSTLE'S LIFE ARE OUTLINED.

A FAVORITE DISCIPLE

Characteristics of Sea of Galilee are Embodied in His Make-Up—Overcomes Weaknesses.

Reverend T. C. Thorson delivered a scholarly address at the Norwegian Lutheran church Sunday evening, in which he analyzed the character of apostle Peter. He took for his text St. John's gospel, 1:42. He spoke in part as follows:

"St. Peter's name was originally Simon. The Lord always called him Simon. Peter was born at Bethsaida. His father's name was John. By trade he was a fisherman. After his marriage he lived at Capernaum. Mark tells us that Jesus was a guest at the home of Peter at Capernaum at which time He healed his mother-in-law. He was sick with a fever. The apostle Paul, tells us that St. Peter took his wife with him on his missionary journeys. St. Peter was married, all the arguments to the contrary notwithstanding."

Andrew, Peter's brother, found Christ, then brought his brother to Christ. When Christ saw Simon He said: 'Thou shalt be called Cephas, a stone.' That appellation was the heart of Peter and bound him inseparably to Christ. That Peter expected to be called to the discipleship is probable. However, when the call came, he accepted it.

"The character of Peter is perplexing. When we first meet him, he seems common, but further acquaintance shows him as uncommon as he first appeared common. At times it seems as though the characteristics of the sea of Galilee are embodied in him. He is bold as the billows that rise in defiance to the sky; unstable as the waves; timid as the waters that recede from the shore; pliant to every wind that blows; yet possessing the combativeness of the sea that hurls billows upon billows against whatever dares resist it. There is one incident in the life of Peter that seems to furnish a key to his character. It is his attempt to walk on the water. With characteristic boldness he launches out upon the sea. It was a deed of daring that others would not have ventured upon. But Peter's daring and courage forsake him. And he cries in abject terror as he sinks. Lord save me! The cause of the sudden change from courage to despair is not to be sought in the added fury of the storm, but in the conflicting elements of faith and doubt in his own soul. Sometimes it is the element of cowardice that is in the ascendency, at other times it is heroism enthroned. It is the coward that seeks to escape the conflict of the valley below that desires to abide on the Mount of Transfiguration; but it is the divine heroism in Peter that exclaims: 'Thou art the Christ of the Son of the Living God.' It is this coward in Peter that shrinks from pain and death, rebuking Christ when He told of His coming suffering and death; it is the hero in Peter that valiantly said, 'I should die with thee I will not deny thee in any wise. It is the bold impetuous, heroic Peter that unsheathes the sword singly handed against his enemies, yet that very night all his heroism is demolished by the questions of a maid in the palace of the high priest Caiaphas. It is the cold and unfeeling Peter who tells the enemies of Christ that man must obey God rather than man, but who later at Antioch is rebuked by St. Paul for having withdrawn from eating with the Gentiles for fear of the Jews, who came from Jerusalem.

"Nevertheless it would seem as though St. Peter was singled out by Christ for a unique mission when He gave unto thee the keys of heaven, and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. When on Pentecost he opened the door of heaven to the Jews and to the Gentiles at the home of Cornelius. But the power of the keys was bestowed on all the apostles and believers. For it is the power of the keys was an exclusive privilege of the apostleship of Peter, it is lost because he could not transmit his apostleship to others; that he could transfer his eye witness of Christ, a prerequisite to apostleship."

"Again Christ says to Peter, 'thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.' The foundation of the church is Christ. 'Other foundation can no man lay than is laid, which is Jesus Christ.'"

"In conclusion let me say that we cannot form any adequate conception of Peter without studying the life of Peter. In the Epistles it is not the Peter who says, 'Ye are from thee.' It is another Peter who says, 'Ye were not redeemed with corruptible things as silver and gold; but with the precious blood of Jesus Christ. It is not the Peter who shrinks from pain and suffering and death, but a Peter that says, 'Because ample that we shall follow His steps, and who adds, 'rejoice inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's suffering.' The morning of Peter's life is his turbulent nature, but the evening is serene, vibrant with hope and aflame with the glory of heaven."

NATIONAL SECURITY LEAGUE CONFERENCE ON PREPAREDNESS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, June 14.—Foreign secretary of the War and Navy Departments, General Dyer, today directed that the United States preparedness for the United States gathered today at the Hotel Astor for a two day Peace and Preparedness Conference, under the auspices of the National Security League.

Among those scheduled to make addresses are Jacob M. Dickinson, Henry Stimson, Charles J. Bonaparte, George von Otter, Dr. Layman Abbott, Hudson Maxim, Dr. E. B. Parker, and Frederick R. Coudert.

Today will be devoted to discussion of the army question while tomorrow will be "Navy Day." A monster mass meeting is planned for tonight at Carnegie Hall.

Stopped the Supply.
Little Margaret's father was away on a business trip for six weeks and during his absence a letter was received from him almost every day. Upon her father's return Margaret met the mail man and said: "You needn't bring us any more letters—my papa's home."

COMPANY'S AFFAIRS BADLY MISMANAGED ATTORNEYS DECLARE

Combined Securities of Valecia and Footville Concerns, Less Than $250,000.—Liabilities $400,000.

A statement issued by the attorneys for the creditors of the Footville Condensed Milk company declares that the affairs of the company have been grossly mismanaged. The testimony declares that balances were forced in an effort to make a statement. The books are in bad shape—badly kept. The bookkeeper stated he was unable to get entries. An order has been issued directing the sale of the plants free and clear of all liens and encumbrances.

List of Assets Filled.
A list of assets of the Valecia and Footville Condensed Milk companies has been filed with the referee in bankruptcy. The Valecia company has securities estimated at $168,179.24 and the Footville company $70,272.72, apportioned as follows:

Middleton plant	$62,044.12
Millboro plant	$35,985.62
Receivables	46,889.60
Accounts receivable, estimated	3,000.00
Personal property, estimated	2,500.00
Footville plant	$61,947.72
Accounts receivable, estimated	1,200.00
Personal dispute	6,125.00
Personal property, estimated	1,000.00

These figures are as accurate as can be ascertained at the present time, according to the attorneys. The figures given for the plants are the actual figures set by the appraisers. The question of personal property and of accounts receivable is only an estimate as there are many disputes over the accounts.

Separate Liabilities.
The liabilities of the Valecia company are $268,367.72 and of the Footville company $91,669.18.

The statement of the attorneys for the creditors says further: "An examination has been held of certain of the officers which has disclosed a startling method of business transactions. The Valecia company was incorporated for $300,000 and $300,000 was issued for so-called 'process' at a meeting which purports to have been held August 26, 1913. This meeting was never actually held. The 'process' was, according to testimony written up by men who were working in the Footville factory at a time subsequent to August, 1913. So far as we have been able to ascertain the promoters of this company never paid in any money. * * * Certain of the proceeds of the process stock ever reached the treasurer of the company."

LITERARY SOCIETIES HAVE OBSTACLES DURING STORM

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milton, June 14.—The literary societies at Milton College held their annual commencement session under some difficulties. In spite of the terrific storm of wind and rain a very large audience was assembled in the auditorium Saturday night. The program opened with a spirited piano duet well played by Geneva Bennett and Aster Davis, followed by a humorous reading by Cecile Wentworth. Then the college glee club sang in the usual effective style, though the thunder and the noise of the heavy rain on the roof of the auditorium were somewhat distracting. After the song C. F. Gesler presented a very amusing and interesting speech. But in spite of his entertaining manner, an heroic effort became necessary in order to hold the attention of the throng. The rain rattled on the roof and windows, the thunder roared now and then, and in the midst of his speech the electric lights went out, owing to some accident to the line near Janesville, caused by the storm. Mr. Gesler finished his speech in the darkness, after which, while other lights were sought, the glee club sang and President Dahm played on the piano. Then a burlesque copy of a Milton College paper was read by two students representing an old farmer and his wife, eager to gain news from Milton and their boy Willie. A vocal quartet closed the entertainment.

Program.
Piano Duet—Geneva Bennett, Aster Davis.
Reading—Cecile Wentworth.
Music—Glee Club.
Speech—C. F. Gesler.
Piano Solo—Gladys Cartwright.
Lecture—Journalist Shraw. C. E. West, Marjorie Burdick, D. H. Van Horn.

UNSIGNED LETTER FROM VICTIM OF LUSITANIA FOUND AT QUEENSTOWN

Queenstown, June 14.—Watersoaked and partly illegible, the unfinished and unsigned letter-diary of a girl picked up a few days ago near the scene of the disaster, and is awaiting a claimant here. There is no clue to the identity of the writer except for the mention of the first names of several relatives. The letter is addressed to "My dear Ruth," and the other names mentioned include "Aunt Ruth," "Nellie Casson," "Will Hobson," "Ethel Klass," and "Willie and Bee."

Madam, Allow Me To Introduce the New Post Toasties

You may have eaten "corn flakes" but you have never tasted any that equal the New Post Toasties.

These new flakes madam, are crisp and flakey, and have a substance and toastie flavour, a snap and zest that make them distinctive.

Dainty to be sure in their sweetness, the New Post Toasties have a body and firmness that don't mush down when cream or milk is added; and a true ripe-corn flavour that makes one feel that here at last, is something really new and good to eat.

New Post Toasties—selected Indian corn, prepared for the table as it was never prepared before.

Your grocer has them now.

ALUMNI BANQUET IS HELD AT EVANSVILLEOne Hundred and Fifty Attend Annual Affair Held at Methodist Church.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, June 14.—The annual high school alumni banquet was held Saturday night at the Methodist church, covers being laid for about one hundred and fifty. The sumptuous banquet dinner was served by the ladies of the church. The church was unusually attractively decorated, a color scheme of pink and white being effectively carried out. The program following the dinner was enjoyed by all, speeches being given by a number of presidents of the various classes represented. Among the class reunions was that of the class of 1885. Those who were unable to be present wrote letters, the reading of which was much enjoyed.

Mrs. O. C. Colony was adopted class mother for the class of 1913. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. Gertrude Eager, president; Miss Mina Hubbard, vice president; Miss Mae Finn, secretary; H. L. Aulin, treasurer. Same class officers as year previous. The executive board will be announced later.

Miss Maud Kennedy and Russell Cowan of Footville, were united in marriage here Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at St. Paul's Catholic church, Rev. Father McDermott officiating.

Members of the freshman and sophomore classes of the high school gave a farewell party Saturday night for Miss Gertrude Newman, who soon leaves for Chicago. The party was held in Fisher's hall, which was made especially attractive for the occasion, and a splendid time was reported by all present.

The third car of road off has been received and will be applied as soon as the weather permits. This will make about thirty thousand gallons already applied. It is expected that ten thousand gallons in all will be necessary for the completion of the work.

The last meeting of the O. E. S. for the summer will be held Monday night at the Masonic hall. A program will be given and refreshments served and a good attendance desired.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST PLAGUE VITAL FOR ALL
SEAPORT TOWNS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] San Francisco, June 14.—In view of the world wide distribution of plague and its adverse effect on commerce, it would seem a matter of urgent importance for seaports especially to so change their type of architecture and building as to erect permanent barriers against the increase of rodents," said Surgeon General Rupert Blue of the United States Public Health Service today in an address before the American Society of Tropical Medicine. The subject of Dr. Blue's address was "Plague Preventive Measures: Their Development and Present Status."

Dr. Blue who was largely instrumental in evolving the modern methods of fighting plague, pointed out that as a result of the campaigns carried on by the Public Health Service in San Francisco and New Orleans building operations have been practically revolutionized.

"In order to effectually combat a plague outbreak in an urban community, well directed efforts must be made simultaneously of food, to prevent their harborage, and to exclude them from human dwellings. While it is impossible to destroy all rodents within a plague infected city, when their number has been reduced by one-half the disease among human beings ceases."

Mrs. Ed Hahn is visiting relatives in Chicago for a couple of weeks.

The sophomore class of the high school held a picnic at Bruce's landing, Green Lake, Saturday, and the eighth grade were at Turtle Lake.

Summer school at the normal opens today for a nine week session.

Lawrence Quinn of Chicago was here yesterday to visit his aunt, Miss Josephine Kelley.

Mrs. H. C. Brown and her milliner, Miss Lydia Moline, went to Chicago this morning on business.

Miss Nellie Griffin of Fort Atkinson spent the week end at the home of J. Higgins.

Unusually good children's day exercises were held yesterday at the E. church. The decorations consisted of green and pink, the roses being made and furnished by the Social auxiliary of the church.

The little folks under the direction of Mrs. R. H. Dixon, superintendent, and her assistants, was exceedingly good. About forty were received into the church on probation, sixteen into full membership. Fifteen infants received baptism and ten adults.

Quite a number of the business places exhibited the national colors today in observance of flag day.

PORCH SHADES

Reinforced
Every Shade Equipped

with
Vudor Safety Wind Device

Over 600,000 Vudors in daily use

VUDOR SHADES will successfully endure the sun and rain of many seasons. They supply years of real porch comfort. VUDOR PORCH SHADES come in the following sizes:

4 ft. wide by 7 ft. 8-in. drop each $2.25
6 ft. wide by 7 ft. 8-in. drop, each $3.25

VUDOR RE-ENFORCED PORCH SHADES are made of light, strong wooden slats (not bamboo) lock-stitched together by heavy, rot-proof seine twine. This lock weave, which holds slats permanently without slipping, is patented. All shades have double warps at both edges and are re-enforced by other double warps at intervals across the shade—no other shades are so re-enforced.

They can be raised or lowered as easily as an awning.

VUDOR SHADES come stained indelibly in soft colors to harmonize perfectly with your house.

NO FLAPPING IN WIND; EVERY VUDOR SHADE is equipped with a Vudor Safety Wind Device that does not have to be hooked or unhooked each time you roll the shade up and down.

8 ft. wide by 7 ft. 8-in. drop, each $4.25
10 ft. wide by 7 ft. 8-in. drop, each $5.50
